Elgar Parishad-Maoist links case: HC grants bail to two accused noting long incarceration

Stan Swamy, one of the accused, died in 2021 while in prison

PTI, MUMBAI: The Bombay High Court on Wednesday granted bail to Delhi-based researcher Rona Wilson and activist Sudhir Dhawale, arrested in the Elgar Parishad-Maoist links case in 2018, stating the trial in the case was yet to start.

Granting the bail against a surety of Rs one lakh each, a division bench of Justices A S Gadkari and Kamal Khata noted that the two had spent more than six years in jail as under-trial prisoners.

Wilson and Dhawale were directed by the HC to appear before the special NIA court during the trial, surrender their passports, and not leave the city until the trial is over.

"They have been in jail since 2018. Even the charges in the case are yet to be framed. The prosecution has cited over 300 witnesses, and thus there is no possibility of the trial to conclude in the near future," the court said.

Defence lawyers said once they get the operative order from HC, they would move the special NIA court to complete formalities for the release of Wilson and Dhawale from the Taloja prison near Mumbai.

With this bail order, 10 out of 16 people arrested have got bail so far in the case, which was registered by Pune police in 2018 alleging that the accused were involved in provocative speeches delivered at the Elgar Parishad conclave held in Pune on December 31, 2017, triggering violence at Koregaon-Bhima in Pune district the next day.

The Pune police had claimed the conclave was backed by the Maoists.
