PTI, NEW DELHI: AAP national convener Arvind Kejriwal, while addressing a 'Jansabha' in East Delhi's Trilokpuri, urged the public to cast their votes "mindfully" in the upcoming assembly elections on February 5. He warned voters not to press the "wrong button," referring to the BJP's lotus symbol and alleged that if the saffron party comes to power, all free facilities they enjoy now would be discontinued. Kejriwal claimed that if the BJP wins the election, the people of Delhi would "land in trouble" and appealed to the public to choose the Aam Aadmi Party to "secure the future of their children." "If you press the wrong button, your children's future will be ruined. When they grow up, they will blame you for voting for the wrong party," he said. Kejriwal paused his speech midway as the 'azaan' (call to prayer) was heard. Beginning again, he said, "AAP provides 24x7 electricity in Delhi, while the BJP has failed to provide such facilities in the states it governs. Don't press the wrong button on February 5, or by the time you reach home, the electricity will be gone."

He also referred to the BJP's election manifesto, alleging that the party intends to end free education for all. "Anurag Thakur, their minister, has announced that if the BJP comes to power, free education will be stopped. Do you want that to happen? If you press the wrong button, your children's future will be destroyed. Press the 'broom' button to save them," Kejriwal said. The former Delhi Chief Minister also alleged that the BJP had a plan to shut down Mohalla Clinics, ending free healthcare services, and discontinue free bus rides for women. "Don't press the lotus button, or you'll land yourself in trouble. Whoever BJP is in power, the situation is in a terrible state," he said. Kejriwal promised that if AAP is re-elected, it would implement all schemes announced in its manifesto, which includes a monthly grant to women. On a lighter note, Arvind Kejriwal said, "Someone once asked me, 'Where will the money come from for all these promises?' I replied, 'I am Baniya's son. I know how to manage resources.'"

8 IEDs planted by Naxalites recovered in Chhattisgarh

PTI, BIJAPUR: Security forces on Wednesday recovered eight improvised explosive devices (IEDs) planted by Maoists in Bijapur district of Chhattisgarh, police said. Civilians have fallen prey to such traps laid by ultras in the past in the region, police said. On January 17, two personnel of the Border Security Force (BSF) were injured when Naxalites triggered an IED blast in neighbouring Narayanpur district. A day before that, two commandos of CoBRA (Commando Battalion for Resolute Action) and Bomb Disposal Squad (BDS) was out on an area domination and demining operation, a police official said. Security personnel spotted the IEDs packed in steel boxes planted beneath the dirt track, averting a major mishap, he said. The pressure switch mechanism was used in the IEDs which were later neutralised by the BDS, he said. The Maoists often plant IEDs along the road and dirt tracks in forest to target security personnel during patrolling in interior pockets of Bastar region comprising seven districts, including Bijapur. On January 12, a 10-year-old girl was injured in Sukma district and two policemen sustained wounds in Bijapur district in similar incidents of pressure IED blasts. Prior to that on January 10, a villager was killed and three others were injured in two separate incidents of pressure IED blasts in Orchha area of Narayanpur.
