Activists celebrate OCI battle win with litany

Team Herald

MARGAO: Goans for Goa (GFG) recently held a thanksgiving litany at Miramar Circle to express gratitude for the resolution of struggles faced by Goans in obtaining Overseas Citizen of India (OCI) status.

A large number of citizens participated in the litany to St. Anthony, marking the success of a long battle against the Ministry of External Affairs' (MEA) circulars that had rendered many Goans ineligible for OCI.

The issue arose when the MEA declared that those who renewed their Indian passports after registering their birth (Assento) in Portugal would have their passports revoked, making them foreigners in their own land. GFG, alongside affected individuals, fought the matter in court, ultimately securing justice.

Kennedy Afonso, GFG president, thanked key organisers, including Cive Sequeira, Fortune, Venancio, Bevinada, and Christine, for making the event possible. The litany was followed by a fellowship gathering, bringing together those who had campaigned for OCI.

MARGAO: In a step towards reviving India's maritime heritage, the country's first ancient stitched ship was officially launched at the Hodi Innovation shipyard on Divar Island. The event, held on Wednesday, was attended by senior Indian Navy officials, including Rear Admiral KM Ramakrishnan, VSM, Flag Officer Commanding Karnataka Naval Area (FOK), who was the chief guest.

Designed and built entirely in Goa, the ship is a tribute to India's traditional shipbuilding techniques. The vessel has been crafted using coconut fibre stitching, traditional wooden joinery, and natural resins, methods historically used in ancient Indian maritime construction. The project brought together expert artisans from across India, including a skilled team led by master craftsman Babu Shankaran from Kerala.

Speaking at the launch, Prathamesh Dandekar, Managing Director of Hodi Innovations, described the ship as a "living testament to India's shipbuilding legacy." He credited the artisans for their dedication and expressed gratitude to the Indian Navy and the Ministry of Culture for their support in bringing the project to fruition. Rear Admiral Ramakrishnan highlighted the historical significance of stitched ships, emphasizing their deep-rooted connection to India's ancient seafaring traditions. He announced that the vessel would be docked at Karwar port, where Captain Dilip Donde, India's first solo global circumnavigator, would mentor a Navy team undertaking ocean voyages aboard the ship. "Captain Donde's expertise will be invaluable in this historic initiative," he added. The project was conceptualised by economist and historian Sanjeev Sanyal and is being executed through a tripartite agreement between Hodi Innovations, the Indian Navy, and the Ministry of Culture. The Goa-based Hodi Innovations has built a range of vessels, including sailing boats, motorboats, and patrol boats for the Indian defence forces, with expertise in steel, aluminum, and FRP (fibre-reinforced plastic) construction.

Speaking at the inauguration of the Urban Ayushman Arogya Mandir at Moti Dongor on Tuesday, Margao MLA Digambar Kamat assured residents that their homes would remain untouched as long as he was in office. There are messages circulating on WhatsApp about the demolition of structures in Moti Dongor. Those spreading such rumours are unaware of the history and background of this settlement," Kamat declared. "Let me make it clear—while I am here, no one will dare to touch these structures." The newly inaugurated wellness center marks the second public facility introduced in Moti Dongor within four months, following the establishment of a police outpost. "Young people spreading messages about demolition must understand the history here. The government had planned to demolish these houses years ago, and a proposal was made to relocate 280 families to Housing Board accommodations with instalment-based payments. However, the local leadership chose to stay in Moti Dongor due to its proximity to the city," Kamat explained. Meanwhile, Health Minister Rane insisted that healthcare should remain above politics and urged residents not to be misled by baseless speculation about demolitions. "There are people spreading rumours that homes will be razed. Do not believe them. Kamat has assured that a government notification safeguards these structures," Rane stated. "We are committed to making healthcare accessible to every resident of Moti Dongor, and all necessary facilities will be provided here."

STREET VOICES

WHERE GOANS ARE HEARD

If India is moving ahead as digital India, why is care not taken to ensure that proper provisions are made to provide continued internet services? Although the use of electricity poles by internet and cable providers without paying dues may have been illegal, was the rash manner in which the cables were cut, justified?

– Vincent Toscano, managing partner, Uzoorba Technologies

DID POOR COORDINATION BETWEEN GOVERNMENT DEPTS LEAD TO THE INTERNET SHUTDOWN?

It is a disgrace that two government departments cannot coordinate on a fundamental infrastructure issue like internet connectivity. In 2025, when the world is digitized and the Prime Minister speaks about digitization driving India forward, two departments under the same ruling party are failing to coordinate on this critical matter. Is this incompetence on the part of ministers, bureaucrats, and those involved, or is it a case of egos clashing? Are we waiting for someone to die due to a medical emergency before this issue is addressed? Just as in the developed world, internet cables should be laid underground with proper ducting

– Nilesch Shah, ex-president, TTAG

I believe the cable operators are at fault. The electricity department had previously issued them a warning, yet they neither heeded it nor made the necessary payments. If they were required to pay the government, they should have done so. Now, we are operating from St. Cruz using BSNL, and we haven't faced any issues. The Executive Engineer (EE) who was recently removed had stated that only cables in Panjim were cut. But if that's the case, how did internet services across Goa go down? Everyone was complaining. How did this happen? I strongly feel that the cable operators themselves deliberately disrupted services. The electricity department is not to blame for this situation

– Remie Azavedo, founder, Fabcoders

We were affected by the disruption of internet services. However, those with Jio wireless connectivity had no issues, which helped to some extent. On the other hand, people using wired services faced significant problems. Many switched to Jio wireless as an alternative. The disruption impacted a lot of people, especially students—it's not as if it went unnoticed. Even business owners were affected
