Mexico joins trade war, imposes tariffs on US

AP, MEXICO CITY: Mexico President Claudia Sheinbaum said Tuesday that Mexico will respond to 25% tariffs imposed by the United States with its own retaliatory tariffs on US goods. Sheinbaum said she will announce the products Mexico will target on Sunday in a public event in Mexico City's central plaza, perhaps indicating Mexico still hopes to de-escalate the trade war set off by US President Donald Trump. Unlike China and Canada, Mexico decided to wait until Sunday, though the country has said since January that it had a plan ready for precisely this scenario. Canada said it would slap tariffs on more than $100 billion of American goods over the course of 21 days. Sheinbaum said Tuesday that there is no reason for penalties on some of the largest trading partners for the US. "There is no motive or reason, nor justification that supports this decision that will affect our people and our nations," she said. The tariffs that had been threatened by President Donald Trump's against Canada and Mexico went into effect Tuesday ratcheting up the risk of retaliations from the United States' North American allies. Starting just past midnight, imports from Canada and Mexico are now to be taxed at 25%, with Canadian energy products subject to 10% import duties.

Sheinbaum rejected the "fact sheet" published by the White House Monday that repeated the accusation that Mexican drug traffickers persist because "an intolerable relationship with the government Mexico." Mexico's president called it "offensive, defamatory and without support" and then listed the achievements of her young administration against Mexico's powerful drug cartels, including seizing more than a ton of fentanyl and dismantling 329 methamphetamine labs. She also noted that Mexico had sent 29 drug cartel figures requested by the United States to that country last week. "We collaborate to avoid illegal drug trafficking to the United States, but as we have said on multiple occasions, that country's government must take responsibility too for the crisis of opioid consumption that has caused so many deaths in the United States," Sheinbaum said. Mexico's president added that the tariffs Mexico will respond with are "not in any way or with the purpose of starting an economic or commercial confrontation that unfortunately and regrettably is the opposite of what we must be doing." In reaction to tariffs on China, Beijing announced additional tariffs of up to 15% on imports of key US farm products, including chicken, pork, soy and beef, and expanded controls on doing business with key US companies.

Meitei body demands action against Kuki group over Shah's order

PTI, IMPHAL: The COCOMI, an umbrella body of several Imphal-based civil society organisations of the Meiteis, on Tuesday demanded legal action against a key Kuki organisation for defying Union Home Minister Amit Shah's call for free movement of all people across Manipur from March 8.

The COCOMI's demand came a day after the Committee on Tribal Unity (COTU) said that free movement as announced by Shah would not be allowed in Kuki Zo inhabited areas, and asserted that the demand for a Union Territory with Legislature for the community is "not negotiable".

The Union Home Minister Amit Shah on March 1 directed security forces to ensure free movement of people on all routes in Manipur from March 8 and also called for strict action against those creating obstructions.

The order bears significance as travel through the areas inhabited by Imphal valley-based Meiteis and neighbouring hills-based Kukis was totally prohibited since ethnic violence broke out between the two communities in May 2023. The violence left over 250 people killed and thousands homeless since then.

NASA astronauts nearing return after 9 months stranded in space

AP, CAPE CANAVERAL (US): NASA's two stuck astronauts - Butch Wilmore and Sunita Williams - are just a few weeks away from finally returning to Earth after nine months in space. Wilmore and Williams have to wait until their replacements arrive at the International Space Station next week before they can check out later this month.

They'll be joined on their SpaceX ride home by two astronauts who launched by themselves in September alongside two empty seats.

Speaking from the space station on Tuesday, Williams said the hardest part about the unexpected extended stay was the wait by their families back home.

"It's been a roller coaster for them, probably a little more so than for us," she said.

Wilmore and Williams expected to be gone just a week or so when they launched last June aboard Boeing's new Starliner capsule, making its crew debut after years of delay. The Starliner had so many problems getting to the space station that NASA ruled it too dangerous to carry anyone and it flew back empty.

Their homecoming was further delayed by extra completion time needed for the brand new SpaceX capsule that was supposed to deliver their replacements.

Last month, NASA announced the next crew would launch in a used capsule instead, pushing up liftoff to March 12. The two crews will spend about a week together aboard the space station before Wilmore and Williams depart with NASA's Nick Hague and the Russian Space Agency's Alexander Gorbunov.

Wilmore and Williams - retired Navy captains and repeat space fliers - have insisted over the months that they are healthy and committed to the mission as long as it takes. They took a spacewalk together in January.
