

Putin-Witkoff talks betray Kremlin's new-found amiable tone towards Washington

AP, MOSCOW: Russian President Vladimir Putin met with US envoy Steve Witkoff to discuss details of the American proposal for a 30-day ceasefire in the war with Ukraine, asking him to convey Moscow's thoughts to Washington, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said Friday.

Putin asked Witkoff late Thursday to give additional messages to US President Donald Trump, Peskov told reporters, after the Russian leader said at a news conference that he supported a truce in principle but set out a host of details that need to be clarified before it is agreed.

Trump said the US held "very good and productive" discussions with Putin the day before. In a post on his Truth Social site Friday morning, Trump said "that there is a very good chance that this horrible, bloody war can finally come to an end", adding that Ukrainian troops are surrounded by the Russian military

US officials have said Washington was set to discuss technical issues related to a possible ceasefire next week. Given the range of issues on the table, and the sharp differences between what Moscow and Kyiv want, it could potentially take weeks or months for the guns to fall silent.

Trump vowed during his election campaign to settle the war in 24 hours, but in January he changed that timeframe, voicing hope that peace could be negotiated in six months.

Putin's apparently amicable tone toward the White House reflects the remarkable shift in US relations with Russia and Ukraine since Trump returned to office in January. Former President Joe Biden had sought to isolate Putin. Trump has threatened both Russia and Ukraine with punitive measures if they don't engage with his peace efforts.

Trump briefly cut off critical military aid and intelligence sharing in an apparent effort to push Kyiv to enter talks on ending the war.

Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy had a tense meeting at the White House on February 28 in which Trump questioned whether Ukraine wanted to halt the war.

Trump has raised the possibility of tightening sanctions on Russia, though his administration has also repeatedly embraced Kremlin positions on the conflict, including indicating that Ukraine's hopes of joining NATO are unlikely to be realised and that it probably will not get back the land that Russia's army occupies, which amounts to nearly 20 per cent of the country.

war can finally come to an end", adding that Ukrainian troops are surrounded by the Russian military.

Ukraine, under severe military pressure on parts of the front line three years after Russia's full-scale invasion, has already endorsed the truce proposal.

Russia's army has gained battlefield momentum, and analysts say Putin likely will be reluctant to rush into a ceasefire while he feels he has an advantage.

The Russian army, backed by North Korean troops, are now close to completely driving Ukrainian forces from their foothold in Russia's Kursk border region in what would be a major setback for Kyiv.

A possible phone call between Putin and Trump to settle outstanding ceasefire issues could be arranged after Witkoff delivers the messages in Washington, Peskov said. "There is an understanding on both sides that such a call is needed," Peskov said.

"There are certainly some grounds for cautious optimism," Peskov said of the ceasefire proposal. "A lot still needs to be done, but the president has shown solidarity with President Trump's position."

Senior BJD leader alleges involvement of IAS, IPS officers in Odisha mining scam

PTI, BHUBANESWAR: Former Odisha minister Badri Narayan Patra has accused an IAS and an IPS officer of promoting the multi-crore mining and transport scam in Keonjhar district. The senior BJD leader's allegations came after the Economic Offences Wing (EOW) of the Odisha Crime Branch arrested Biju Yuva Janata Dal (BJD) leader Soumya Shankar Chakra (alias Raja Chakra) for his alleged role in illegal mining operations.

The Economic Offences Wing of the Crime Branch, on Thursday, arrested Biju Yuva Janata Dal state vice-president Soumya Shankar Chakra, alias Raja Chakra, in connection with an alleged multi-crore mining and transport scam.

Patra, a six-time BJD MLA alleged: "As per my information, the then district magistrate-cum-collector and the superintendent of police, Keonjhar district, provided full protection to Raja Chakra."

"The collector and SP were also part and parcel of such illegal activities. The duo had a share in the loot of minerals, financial irregularities, and kickbacks.

They were in Keonjhar for nearly 5-6 years," the sitting BJD MLA from Ghaspura alleged.

Sources said that one Odisha cadre IPS officer of the 2010 batch was the superintendent of police (SP) of Keonjhar district for a long time, during which Raja Chakra was allegedly involved in illegal mining and transportation activities.

"The IPS officer concerned is also a recipient of three police medals for gallantry from the President of India," a senior official said, adding that the officer was shifted from Keonjhar.

Similarly, Patra took the name of a Maharashtra-born IAS officer of the 2011 batch and said that he had served as the district collector of Keonjhar from 2018 to 2024.

"I am sure these two officers will now also be getting shares from Raja Chakra's illegal earnings," Patra alleged, demanding that all those, including the All India Service officers who supported Raja Chakra in illegal activities be arrested.

He alleged Raja Chakra could undertake all illegal activities due to the protection from the district collector and SP.

"The district administration was in Raja's pocket," he alleged.

Patra, being a senior leader of BJD from the mineral-rich district, further revealed that he had informed the Chief Minister's Office (CMO) during the previous government.

Two Tanzanian nationals arrested in drug trafficking case in Punjab

PTI, KOZHIODE (KERALA): Two Tanzanian nationals, allegedly key operatives in an inter-state drug trafficking network, have been arrested from Punjab in connection with a major drug case in Kerala, police said on Friday. The accused, identified as David Ntame (22) and Atka Haruna (21), are students at a university in Punjab.

Their arrests followed crucial information provided by two individuals previously arrested in a case registered by the Kunnamangalam police, officials said.

The case first came to light with the arrest of Ibrahim Musamil (27), a native of Manjeswaram, Kasaragod, and Abhinav (24), a resident of Velliparamba, Kozhikode, on January 21, police said.

During their interrogation, investigators took them to Bengaluru on February 4 for evidence collection.

A search was conducted at the lodge where the accused had stayed, and details of their associates were gathered. Further scientific investigations led officers to their co-accused, police added.

On February 12, police tracked down Mohammed Shamil, the third accused, in Mysuru and took him into custody near a hotel close to Vrindavan Garden.

Further scrutiny of financial transactions revealed that a large sum of money had been transferred to David Ntame's bank account. Investigators found that the money was withdrawn in Noida through an account belonging to Atka Haruna, police said.

Following this lead, officers traced the suspects to Phagwara, Punjab, where they were residing as paying guests near their college.

A special investigation team then reached Phagwara and arrested them from their rented accommodation, police said.

Officials further stated that they would verify the claim of one of the accused that he is the son of a judge in Tanzania.

India adds six properties to tentative list for UNESCO recognition

PTI, NEW DELHI: A set of six properties -- including some considered serially, such as Ashokan Edict Sites and Chausath Yogini Temples spread across multiple states -- have been added to India's tentative list by the UNESCO's World Heritage Centre. These sites were added to the list on March 7, the Permanent Delegation of India to UNESCO said in a statement. India at UNESCO shared the statement on microblogging site X, late on Thursday.

Addition to the World Heritage Centre's tentative list is mandatory if a property is to be nominated for inscription to the World Heritage List in future, it said.

The six properties added to the tentative list include Kanger Valley National Park in Chhattisgarh; Mudumal Megalithic Menhirs in Telangana; serial nomination of Ashokan Edict Sites along the Mauryan Routes (multiple states); serial nomination of Chausath Yogini Temples (multiple states); serial nomination of Gupta Temples in north India (multiple states), and the palace-fortresses of the Bundelas in Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh, the statement said.

With these additions, India now has 62 sites on the tentative list.

The 'tentative list' is an inventory of properties each country intends to consider for UNESCO nomination.

According to the UNESCO website, the Chausath Yogini Temples considered serially includes sites at multiple locations in the country.

The Chausath Yogini Temples have 64 images of Yoginis in their individual shrines with intricate stone carvings circularly arranged. These temples are mostly situated on hilltops. 'Yogini' refers to a female practitioner of yoga and 'chausath' is the Hindi word for the number 64. The Yoginis are 64 in number and hence called the Chausath Yogini. They are a group of forest spirits and mother goddesses," reads a description on the UNESCO website.
