GRE DEMANDS BAN ON LED FISHING

Says lives of traditional fishermen at stake as authorities fail to initiate action against wrongdoers

Team Herald

PANJIM: The Goenchea Raponkaranchi Ekvott (GRE) on Wednesday submitted a memorandum to the Department of Fisheries, demanding that a ban be imposed on illegal LED fishing, which is destroying the fishing resources of the State and badly affecting the livelihood of traditional fishermen. Later speaking to mediapersons, GRE general secretary Olencio Simoes said that they met Fisheries Minister Nilkanth Halarankar at his Colvale residence and the director of fisheries and submitted their representations to them. He sought to know how LED fishing was going on in the Goan waters when the matter was sub judice.

“The supervisors posted at the jetties across the State should be suspended as they had no fear of laws and the Court – Olencio Simoes, GRE general secretary

There were reports about illegal LED fishing in Goan waters on February 12, Olencio said, demanding to know what action has been taken against the vessel involved in the illegality. Simoes also took pot-shots at those who turned a Nelson's eye to the illegalities at the jetties. "The supervisors posted at the jetties across the State should be suspended as they had no fear of laws and the Court," he said.

Simoes said that during his recent visit to Sri Lanka, he saw how the livelihood of traditional fishermen were destroyed due to rampant LED fishing there. He feared that the Goan traditional fishermen would meet the same fate if no measures were taken to stop illegal LED fishing. The GRE general secretary alleged that the boats from neighbouring Malpe were entering into Goa waters and doing illegal LED fishing during night. He demanded that the department immediately conduct raids and seize these boats. Simoes further said that the Goa Marine Fishing Regulation Act, 1980 be amended and stringent fines be imposed on the violators.

Taxi operators oppose App-based services

Team Herald

PANJIM: A delegation of taxi operators on Wednesday met the Director of Transport and opposed the Goa Transport Aggregator Guidelines 2025, which they claimed aim to bring all taxis under app-based services. The taxi operators voiced their concerns over the move, citing threats to their livelihood. But after the meeting, both the Director of Transport Polumatla P Abhishek as well as the taxi operators stated that the discussions were constructive and suggested implementing uniform rates that balance fair pricing for passengers while ensuring stable earnings for drivers. "We had a productive and meaningful meeting with taxi operators and their leaders. We have proposed new framework and new ideas to the taxi Association and how they can improve their businesses and adopt new technologies to ensure taxi services are available as a matter of convenience. The taxi operators have requested that some time be given to them so that they can consult their own stakeholders. They are ready to work in a positive manner with solutions," Abhishek said. Abhishek said that the department has suggested solutions compiled in a booklet including all the aspects of solution. "We should adopt uniform rates and earning of drivers be protected irrespective of what kind of service and what kind of aggregator and also ensure convenience of locals and tourists.

Tourism Dept replaces beach cleaning contractor in Calangute

Action initiated after shack owners, other tourism stakeholders complained of garbage piling up on beach

Team Herald

CALANGUTE: The Tourism Department has replaced the Calangute beach garbage cleaning contractor after complaints of inefficiency were filed by shack owners, villagers and environmentalists. Speaking to reporters, Calangute MLA Michael Lobo stated that "numerous complaints had been received from shack owners and others regarding the inadequate collection of garbage from the beach area. We had asked the tourism minister to change the contractor. We hope that the new contractor does a good job," he said. He also urged village panchayats in the coastal belt to clear waste from the "no-man's land" between beach shacks and private properties, which has become an informal dumping ground. "There is a large area between the shacks and the private properties behind the sand dunes, filled with beach vegetation, where people—tourists, picnickers, and others—dump their waste, and it is never cleaned. This needs to be cleaned because we must provide a clean beach for visitors, whether Indian or foreign," he emphasised. On Wednesday, the Candolim panchayat conduct-

First charter with 140 Iran tourists lands at Dabolim

Guests being welcomed with garlands

Team Herald

VASCO: The Department of Tourism welcomed a charter flight operated by Qeshm Air from Iran, bringing 140 tourists to the State on Tuesday. This arrival marked the first charter flight from Iran and yet another milestone in Goa's growing appeal as an international tourist destination. The charter flight landed at Dabolim Airport at 6.30 pm, where officials from the Department of Tourism ensured a smooth and warm welcome for the Iranian visitors. They were greeted with a brass band performance and a rose. The representatives from White Pigeon Holidays adorned the guests with garlands and offered them a taste of Goa's famous delicacy, Bebinca. The company had also arranged translators and transportation for the tourists to ensure a smooth experience upon arrival. Many of the visitors, visiting India and Goa for the first time, were seen enjoying the vibrant welcome and capturing moments through selfies. Saira Vaz, an official said, "Two flights from Iran would arrive in Goa. The first flight brought 140 tourists and the second flight, carrying an equal number of tourists, is scheduled to arrive at the Dabolim International Airport. These flights coincide with Iran's traditional Navroz festival holidays." The company has planned three flight schedules on March 19-24, March 24-30 and March 30-April 4. "We are optimistic about Iranian tourists making Goa their preferred destination in the coming years. We hope they have a wonderful time in our beautiful state and return every year," Vaz said. The arrival of this charter flight highlights the increasing interest among international travellers in exploring Goa's rich cultural heritage, diverse traditions, and vibrant culinary offering.

Lawyers oppose Margao civic body's trade licence move

Team Herald

MARGAO: The South Goa Advocates Association (SGAA) has strongly opposed the Margao Municipal Council's (MMC) move to mandate trade licences for advocates' offices, arguing that legal practice is neither a commercial activity nor a trade. The association has formally petitioned the MMC to reconsider its decision, citing well-established legal principles upheld by the Supreme Court. The SGAA, which represents over 850 lawyers practicing across six talukas in South Goa, contends that MMC's decision is fundamentally flawed and lacks legal backing. "The notices requiring advocates to obtain a trade licence are not only incorrect but also contrary to well-established legal principles upheld by the Supreme Court," stated SGAA president Adv Prasad Naik.

He explained that the Supreme Court has consistently ruled that the legal profession does not fall under commercial activity, citing judgments such as V Sashidharan v/s Peter & Karunakar & Others and MP Electricity Board and others v/s Shiv Narayan and others. Copies of these judgments were submitted alongside SGAA's petition to the MMC. MMC chairperson Damu Shirodkar defended the civic body's stance, asserting that the Council is empowered by municipal bye-laws to impose trade licence fees on advocates' offices. He maintained that the council's decision is in accordance with the law and that legal practitioners would be served notices to comply with the requirement. "The MMC will proceed with issuing notices to advocates. They are free to challenge the decision if they wish," Shirodkar stated.

Dry Waste Collection Centre: A vision for cleaner, more sustainable Mapusa

Centre launched under Plastics Lighthouse Project implemented by Anubhuti Welfare Foundation

sa Municipal Council were present. Mapusa MLA said, "The launch of this Dry Waste Collection Centre marks a significant step forward in our vision for a cleaner and more sustainable Mapusa. This initiative highlights what we can achieve when government bodies, corporations, organisations and citizens come together with a shared sense of responsibility. It's not just infrastructure—it's a movement towards a healthier environment for future generations." The launch of the DWCC (supported by Mondelez India) on Global Recycling Day underlines the importance of recycling in addressing global environmental challenges. Located near the Mapusa market, the DWCC (supported by Mondelez India) will provide the necessary infrastructure for enhanced waste segregation, recycling, and processing, contributing to Mapusa's goal of becoming a cleaner and greener town. "The inauguration of this Dry Waste Collection Centre, supported by Mondelez India, is the start of a collective journey towards a cleaner and greener Mapusa. This event reflects the power of community, collaboration, and commitment to responsible waste management. Together, we are shaping a sustainable future," said Ila Joseph, Head - Projects, Anubhuti Welfare Foundation. Circularity Connect 2025 focused on several key objectives, including addressing industry challenges such as waste collection efficiency, market fluctuations, and pricing difficulties, exploring emerging trends and business opportunities in the waste management and recycling sectors and engaging with government representatives to discuss policies and incentives aimed at supporting the formalisation and growth of the recycling industry.
