The annual Diocesan Day of Reparation at the Miraculous Cross atop Nandgad Hill was observed with great devotion. The Bishop of Belagavi, Most Rev Derek Fernandes, was the main celebrant for the solemn Mass accompanied by several priests.

Thousands of faithful from across Goa, Karnataka, and Maharashtra—belonging to different religions—gathered to venerate the Cross. Many placed their petitions at its base, seeking blessings and healing.

The Miraculous Cross was erected in 1888 by Goans who had migrated towards the Belagavi Ghats. They were suffering from deadly diseases, especially severe plagues, and were dying. In their desperation, they prayed before the Holy Cross for healing, vowing that if they were cured, they would return each year to praise and thank the Lord. Since then, the feast of the Miraculous Cross at Nandgad has been celebrated every year on December 29," said Bishop Derek Fernandes.

"We are on Nandgad Hill in the Diocese of Belagavi. The Cross here dates back over a hundred years, and the devotion to it has continued ever since," he added.

Bishop Fernandes also shared that around 25 years ago, efforts were made to better organize and promote devotion at the site. The Cross was refurbished, and installations of the Stations of the Cross and the Mysteries of the Holy Rosary were added, leading to a rise in monthly pilgrimages.

The day began with the Way of the Cross and Masses in various languages. The Diocesan Day of Reparation is observed annually on a Friday during Lent, just before Holy Week. Pilgrims from neighboring states make their way to the Cross, some even undertaking the journey on foot as a form of penance and prayer.

The program included themed preaching, confession, anointing of the sick, and the celebration of the Holy Eucharist in multiple languages. A highlight of the day was a Passion Play performed by the youth atop the hill, reenacting the suffering and crucifixion of Christ.

Ascend 2025: A resounding success at Shree Damodar College

The BBA Programme at Shree Damodar College of Commerce & Economics successfully hosted Ascend 2025, a prestigious national-level management event that brought together bright minds from across India. The event was inaugurated by officiating principal, Professor Sanjay Sawant Dessai, followed by a keynote address from chief guest, Lalit Saraswat, CEO of Sancoale, who discussed the disruption caused by AI and opportunities in entrepreneurship, HR, marketing, and sales.

The theme of Ascend 2025, 'Stratovation'—a fusion of strategy and innovation—encouraged participants to merge structured business planning with creative problem-solving. The competition saw teams from ten colleges, both local and outstation, including institutions from Bangalore, Hubli, and Belgaum, competing not only for victory but also to gain industry insights, foster collaborations, and develop critical corporate skills. After a day of intense competition across various categories—HR, Finance, Marketing, Best Manager, and Teamwork—the event concluded with an impactful valedictory ceremony. The closing address celebrated the event's success and acknowledged the contributions of participants, faculty, and organizers. The winning team from Don Bosco College, Panjim, and the runners-up from KLE College, Hubli, were recognized for their exceptional performances. All round winners and runners-up were also felicitated.
