HOLY FATHER FRANCIS RETURNS TO THE HOUSE OF THE FATHER

Part of his right lung was removed in the late 1950s after a bout of pneumonia, and he suffered from chronic lung disease.

He emerged on Easter Sunday his last public appearance, a day before his death to bless thousands of people in St Peter's Square, drawing wild cheers and applause.

The death now sets off a weekslong process of allowing the faithful to pay their final respects, first for Vatican officials in the Santa Marta chapel and then in St Peter's for the general public, followed by a funeral and a conclave to elect a new pope.

From his election on March 13, 2013, the Argentina-born Jorge Mario Bergoglio signalled a different papacy, embracing refugees and the downtrodden, especially following the troubled tenure of Pope Benedict XVI, who surprisingly resigned.

But conservatives grew increasingly upset with Francis' progressive bent, outreach to LGBTQ+ Catholics and crackdown on traditionalists. He badly botched a notorious case of clergy sexual abuse in 2018.

The crowd-loving, globe-trotting Pope also navigated the church through the coronavirus pandemic from a locked-down Vatican City, declaring it "has shown us that we cannot live without one another, or worse still, pitted against one another".

Francis was elected on a mandate to reform the Vatican bureaucracy and its finances, but he went further, shaking up the church itself without changing its core doctrine.

Asked about a purportedly gay priest, he famously responded, "Who am I to judge?", a welcoming message to the LGBTQ+ community and those who felt shunned by the church.

Francis changed church positions on the death penalty, declaring it inadmissible in all circumstances, and modified its stand on nuclear weapons by saying their possession was immoral.

In other firsts, he approved an agreement with China on bishop nominations that had vexed the Vatican for decades, and charted new relations with the Muslim world by visiting the Arabian Peninsula and Iraq.

But his real revolutionary change came in emphasising the church should be a refuge for those on society's fringes: migrants, the poor, prisoners and outcasts.

Francis lived in the Vatican hotel rather than the Apostolic Palace, wore his old orthotic shoes rather than the traditional red loafers, and used compact cars.

If being the first Latin American and Jesuit pope wasn't enough, he was the first to name himself after St. Francis of Assisi, the 13th century friar known for personal simplicity, his message of peace, and care for society's outcasts and nature.

His first trip as pope was to the Italian island of Lampedusa, epicentre of Europe's migration crisis, and he consistently visited countries where Christians were persecuted.

But over a year passed before Francis met survivors of priestly sexual abuse. Victims' groups questioned whether he understood the scope of the problem.

His papacy's greatest crisis came in 2018, when he discredited Chilean victims of abuse and stood by a bishop linked to their abuser, a notorious paedophile. Francis later invited the victims to the Vatican for a personal mea culpa and summoned the leadership of the Chilean church to have them resign.

Another crisis erupted over ex-Cardinal Theodore McCarrick, the retired archbishop of Washington and a counsellor to three popes.

Francis had sidelined McCarrick after an accusation he had molested a teenage altar boy in the 1970s. The Vatican's onetime US ambassador, Archbishop Carlo Maria Viganò, still accused Francis of rehabilitating McCarrick early in his papacy. Francis eventually defrocked McCarrick after an investigation determined he sexually abused adults as well as minors.

Francis' election after Pope Benedict XVI's stunning decision to resign and retire – the first in 600 years – created the unprecedented reality of two popes on Vatican grounds. Despite the potentially uncomfortable shadow, Francis embraced Benedict as an elder statesman and adviser until his Dec. 31, 2022, death.

Francis didn't pursue the anti-abortion agenda of Benedict or St John Paul II, although he starkly likened it to hiring a hit man to resolve a problem.

But he reversed Benedict's signature liturgical legacy by reimposing restrictions on celebrating the Latin Mass. He said he was healing divisions, but conservatives and traditionalists blasted the move as an attack on them and the old liturgy.

Francis slowly shifted the balance of power from doctrinaire church leaders to more pastoral ones, appointments reflected in choosing cardinals who will elect his successor.

His boldest anti-corruption steps were wrestling the Vatican's bureaucrats into financial line, limiting compensation and ability to receive gifts, and eliminating obstacles to prosecuting cardinals criminally. He authorized a police raid of Vatican offices that led to a criminal trial into a botched London real estate venture.

Economic justice was important to Francis, who said he wanted a poor church that is for the poor.

Francis criticised trickle-down economics in his first major teaching document, saying the powerful feed upon the powerless without regard for ethics, the environment or even God. He elaborated on that in an ecological encyclical, which denounced the structurally perverse system that exploited the poor and risked turning Earth into an immense pile of filth.

WHAT HAPPENS NEXT AT THE VATICAN WHO CAN ELECT A POPE?

Only cardinals under age 80 are eligible, and current regulations limit the number of electors to 120. According to the most recently updated Vatican statistics, there were 136 cardinals under age 80 and eligible to vote, though that number may change before the conclave begins.

Those over 80 can't vote but can participate in pre-conclave meetings, known as general congregations, in which church problems are discussed. It was in these meetings in 2013 that then-Cardinal Jorge Mario Bergoglio spoke about the need for the church to go to the existential peripheries to find those who suffer an off-the-cuff speech that helped his election.

HOW ARE THE VOTES TAKEN?

A first ballot is held in the Sistine Chapel in the afternoon after the initial Mass. If no pope is elected, over the ensuing days two ballots are held each morning and two each afternoon.

Three designated cardinals, known as scrutineers, check each ballot to see if it is filled out correctly. Each name is read aloud and counted, with the results announced to the conclave after each round.

Pope Benedict had tightened the oath of secrecy in the conclave, making clear that anyone who reveals what went on inside faces automatic excommunication.

After the ballots are pierced, they are burned in a cylindrical stove at the end of the voting session. Black smoke from the Sistine Chapel chimney means no decision; white smoke signals the cardinals have chosen a pope and that he has accepted.

Bells also are rung to signal the election of a pope for further clarity. The new pope is introduced from the loggia overlooking St Peter's Square with the words, Habemus Papam! (We have a pope!) and his chosen papal name. The new pope then emerges and gives his first blessing.

A MOMENT TO THANK GOD': GOA CHURCH ON POPE'S DEMISE

Informing that the mourning period will continue till the funeral takes place, Falcao said it is also a time for the church to pray intensely so that God provides a leader, a new Pope who will guide in these difficult times.

"In these difficult times, the Pope was so vocal. He spoke so much against war. He was a man of peace and the man for the poor. It is also a humble prayer of church. These days of mourning are also the days of intense prayer and silence," Falcao said.

The priest said the church is in the Easter season, adding the Easter feast continues for next 50 days.

"We are believers in the resurrection of Christ. It gives us hope. God will lead the church, and guide the church by the Holy Spirit," he said.

Fr Ralin de Souza of Rector of Don Bosco, Fatorda in South Goa said the death of Pope Francis is truly a moment of big transition.

"First, he was known to be very simple. He didn't want too much protocol and I think that simplicity is a quality that stands out in him as a Christian and as a representative of Christ," de Souza said.

"Secondly, he was very honest when he dealt with things, even when it came to religious leaders in the Church. He was forthright and demanding of them, calling for certain standards in how we deal with Christians and how we serve those in the Church," he added.

In many places where there has been war, people have often been cautious about saying who is right or wrong, but he gave straightforward statements and provided clear directions, de Souza said.

"Above all, the Pope demanded peace, irrespective of what countries or leaders had to say," he asserted.

ALL EYES ON THE POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR TO POPE FRANCIS

Cardinal Pietro Parolin: The 70-year-old of Italy has been Francis' secretary of state since 2014 and is considered one of the main contenders to be pope, given his prominence in the Catholic hierarchy.

Cardinal Robert Prevost: The idea of an American pope has long been taboo, given the geopolitical power already wielded by the US. But the Chicago-born Prevost, 69, could be a first. He has extensive experience in Peru, first as a missionary and then an archbishop.

Cardinal Robert Sarah: The 79-year-old, of Guinea, the retired head of the Vatican's liturgy office, was long considered the best hope for an African pope. Beloved by conservatives, Sarah would signal a return to the doctrinaire and liturgically minded papacies of John Paul II and Benedict.

Cardinal Christoph Schoenborn: The archbishop of Vienna, Austria, was a student of Benedict's, and thus on paper seems to have the doctrinaire academic chops to appeal to conservatives.

Cardinal Luis Tagle: The 67-year-old, of the Philippines, would appear to be Francis' pick for the first Asian pope. Francis brought the popular archbishop of Manila to Rome to head the Vatican's missionary evangelization office, which serves the needs of the Catholic Church in much of Asia and Africa.

Cardinal Matteo Zuppi: The 69-year-old Archbishop of Bologna and president of the Italian bishops conference, elected in 2022, is closely affiliated with the Sant'Egidio Community, a Rome-based Catholic charity that was influential under Francis, particularly in interfaith dialogue.

A POPE AND AN AVID SOCCER FAN

The team won a national title in 2013 and then claimed the South American Copa Libertadores for the first time a year later. Club officials travelled twice to the Vatican carrying trophies to thank Francis for his support.

A planned new San Lorenzo stadium is to be named for Pope Francis.

In Italy, there were also suggestions that Pope Francis supported Juventus since his family came from the Piedmont region where the Turin club is based. Francis' father, Mario Bergoglio, was a basketball player.

During a meeting with the Argentina and Italy national teams shortly after he was elected, Francis noted the influence of athletes, especially on youth, and told the players to remember that, for better or worse, they are role models.

Francis met his fellow Argentine Maradona twice as Pope. There was a special audience in connection with a charity soccer match in 2014 when Maradona presented the pontiff with a soccer jersey, emblazoned with the name Francisco – Spanish for Francis – and Maradona's No. 10.

"I think we all now realize he's a (star)," Maradona said after another meeting in 2015. "I'm Francis' top fan."

When Maradona died in 2020, Francis remembered the soccer great in his prayers.

Francis often hailed sports as a way to promote solidarity and inclusion, especially for young people.

During a global conference on faith and sport in 2016, Francis implored leaders to do a better job of keeping corruption off the playing field and said sports must be protected from manipulations and commercial abuse.

"Francis was a special pope, able to illuminate in his time like only the greatest can," Gianluigi Buffon, the former captain of Italy's national soccer team who met the pope on multiple occasions, said on Instagram.

BHOMKARS WANT BYPASS, CM WOULD HAVE NONE OF IT

Earlier, during the meeting, officials presented and explained the proposed flyover and land acquisition plan to the villagers.

Chief Minister Pramod Sawant told the villagers that as per their request, PWD officials will visit Bhoma on Tuesday, April 22, to share on-site project details.

Speaking to mediapersons, Chief Minister Pramod Sawant said, "Someone has wrongly told the villagers that a 60-metre-wide highway is planned. In reality, only a 25-metre-wide flyover is proposed at Bhoma. Only four houses would be impacted and those affected residents would be adequately compensated and rehabilitated."

"No temples or other houses will be affected. There will be no problem in going from one temple to another. There is no threat to the village's cultural or religious structures," he added.

Responding to the demand for a bypass, Sawant said the current plan was finalised in 2007 and making changes would require fresh permissions, including clearance for potentially affected khazan lands, which would significantly delay the project.

"I urged the villagers to cooperate with the Public Works Department (PWD) officials when they visit the village to show them the plan. They have demanded that they should be given in writing. I will do that. I hope that the issue will be resolved once marking is done," he said.

Incidentally, Union Transport Nitin Gadkari announced on April 7, that the Centre has sanctioned Rs 1,060.21 crore for the 4-laning of a 7 km stretch from Bhoma to Old Goa on NH-748.

PILGAO VILLAGERS BLOCK TRUCKS FROM TRANSPORTING ORE TO SARMANAS JETTY

The farmers alleged that the mining company has encroached on their land, and they have been fighting for their demands for the last 11 months.

Sudhakar Vaigankar led the protest, with Pilgao Sarpanch Sharmila Valavalkar and panchayat members Ujwala Betkekar, Sunil Vaigankar, and Chetan Khodginkar also present.

Vaigankar mentioned that they had already filed complaints against the mining company for transporting ore through their tenanted land. He claimed that the villagers were the tenants of properties known as "Sarna Kator" and "Bhalo Kator" at Pilgao and were cultivating the land.

Since July 2024, the mining company has been transporting ore through their properties, contaminating their fields. The tenants fear that continued iron ore transportation will render the land unsuitable for cultivation due to severe dust pollution and spillage, causing permanent damage to the affected properties. The tenants also alleged that despite complaints, the authorities have not taken action against the mining company.

ACB RAIDS KR POLICE STATION, SEIZES CASH FROM COP'S CABIN

Both the constable and a Police Inspector (PI) were being interrogated at the time of going to Press.

The department may face embarrassment if one of the officers arrested is the same individual who previously tarnished the State police force's image.

Sources revealed that both the partners in crime are likely to be arrested.

36 HOURS AFTER NAGALI ROBBERY, COPS STILL GROPE IN THE DARK

The nature in which the thieves broke into the house between midnight and 4 am, assaulted the security guard and tied up the 77-year-old man and his 71-year-old wife to their beds before proceeding to steal valuables estimated at several lakhs of rupees have sent a chill down the spine of the residents. If this is the fate of a prominent family, what hope do ordinary people have is what most people are asking.

Social activist Cecille Rodrigues pointed out, "We have been raising the breakdown of law and order for quite some time. Here a group of people entered a house which has a security guard and cameras. It has been done in a planned manner. The whole house was ransacked. It is heart-breaking. We have heard incidents like this happening in the rural areas. Now it is happening in the city."

Meanwhile, Director General of Police (DGP) Alok Kumar, Inspector General of Police (IGP) Omvir Singh Bishnoi, Deputy Inspector General of Police (Range) Varsha Sharma, Crime Branch SP Rahul Gupta and Panjim PI Vijaykumar Chodankar visited the spot and held an inquiry.

Both husband and wife are safe while their security guard is being treated at the hospital for injuries. The incident came to light in the morning when the domestic help arrived and found the couple bound.

PTI, RANCHI/NEW

The exchange of fire started around 5.30 am in Lugu Hills of Lalpania area of the district, they said.

The troops of 209 Commando Battalion for Resolute Action (CoBRA) along with state police conducted the operation in which eight Naxals were killed and an AK series rifle, three INSAS rifles, a self-loading rifle (SLR), eight country-made guns and a pistol were seized, officials said.

WIFE ARRESTED IN K'TAKA FORMER DGP OM PRAKASH MURDER CASE

"My mother Pallavi and my sister Kirti used to fight with my father often. I strongly suspect that they are involved in the murder of my father. I request you to initiate legal action in this case," he said in his complaint to the police.

The murder was the culmination of frequent run-ins between the couple, the sources said.

It is learnt that there was a property dispute involved in the crime pertaining to a land in Dandeli in Karnataka.

A few months ago, Pallavi had approached the HSR Layout police station to lodge a complaint.

When the staff there did not oblige, she staged a 'Dharna' (sit-in demonstration) in front of the police station, sources claimed.

It's also learnt that Pallavi was diagnosed with schizophrenia and was under medication too.

Meanwhile, the former top police brass was cremated with full state honours in Bengaluru on Monday after the autopsy.

Kartikesh performed the last rites. Relatives and friends of the former DGP gathered to pay their final respects. After a gun salute, he was cremated at Wilson Garden Cremation Ground.

Speaking to reporters after the cremation, Kartikesh said, "After yesterday's incident, I lodged a complaint. The police are doing their job, and I have full faith in them. I don't want to comment further as the investigation will reveal everything. Let's wait for that."

The 68-year-old retired IPS officer was a native of Champaran, Bihar, and held a Master's degree in Geology.

Prakash was appointed Director General of Police on March 1, 2015.

WON'T TOLERATE ANY DEALS WITH US AT OUR EXPENSE, CHINA WARNS NATIONS

India too is negotiating a new trade deal with the US.

China is already battling Trump's up to 245 per cent tariffs on its exports to the US, which last year amounted to USD 439.9 billion, by retaliating with 125 per cent levies against American exports.

Any bilateral trade deals by its major trade partners with the US could seriously impact China's overseas trade, which amounted to USD 3.67 trillion, according to WTO data.

This includes exports last year to its largest trade partners like ASEAN (USD 586.52 billion), EU (USD 580 billion) and Japan (USD 167.12 billion) as per official data.

China's firm stand opposing any bilateral deals with the US also comes at a time when its export-dependent economy is on a slowdown mode weighed down by stagnating domestic consumption, the crisis in its housing sector and dwindling business confidence.

Beijing's new threat to its trade partners was expected to leave these countries in a quandary as many of them are major exporters to China.

After Trump set off the tariff war with China while pausing tariffs against other countries, President Xi Jinping visited Vietnam, Malaysia and Cambodia last week, during which he called for "jointly opposing unilateral bullying".

After Xi's talks with top Vietnamese leaders last week, Trump sounded a warning, saying "That's a lovely meeting. Meeting like trying to figure out, how do we screw the United States of America?"

Caught in the US and China trade war, ASEAN countries want to tread carefully.

"We can't choose, and we will never choose (between China and the US)," Malaysia's trade minister Tengku Zafrul Aziz said after Xi's visit. Malaysia currently heads ASEAN.

"If the issue is about something that we feel is against our interest, then we will protect [ourselves]," he told BBC.

Delta plane catches fire at Orlando airport

AP, ORLANDO: A Delta Air Lines airplane caught fire on Monday before it was supposed to take off at a central Florida airport, forcing the evacuation of passengers, airport officials said. There were no reports of any injuries during the fire on the plane at Orlando International Airport, Delta said in a statement. A recent spate of aviation disasters and close calls in the US has stoked fears about air travel, though flying remains a safe way to travel.

On-the-ground accidents included a plane that crashed and flipped over upon landing in Toronto and a Japan Airlines plane that clipped a parked Delta plane while it was taxiing at the Seattle airport. An American Airlines plane caught fire in Denver last month.
