They came for canonisation of millennial saint, they stayed for Pope Francis' funeral

AP, VATICAN CITY: Thousands of young people from around the world had come to Rome expecting to rejoice this weekend in the canonisation of the first millennial saint during the Vatican's Holy Year. They ended up bidding farewell to Pope Francis instead, with their exuberance giving an uplifting tone to Saturday's otherwise sombre funeral.

He always said you have to be joyful about life, you have to live life in a similar way," said Marco Falchi, who travelled from his home near Perugia with his wife and 11-year-old son. He and his wife credit Francis with reviving their spirituality, and they named their son, Francesco, after him.

The family is also devoted to the cause of sainthood for Carlo Acutis, a young Italian who died in 2006 from leukemia and inspired faith in many young Catholics. They planned their trip to Rome around that.

The canonization of Acutis had been scheduled for Sunday during the first-ever Jubilee of Adolescents, dedicated to teens. It was suspended after Francis' death.

Falchi was struck by the lack of deep mourning at the funeral for the pope. "Especially since this was the jubilee for adolescents, he certainly didn't want a day of mourning but he wanted a day of joy," he said.

There was a clear blue sky over St Peter's Square. Some people camped out the night before to get a good spot. Many stood respectfully, their hands folded, as they followed the Mass on large screens. Radio broadcasts in multiple languages added to the hum of humanity. They applauded when Francis' simple wooden coffin was moved outdoors.

Argentina bids goodbye to native pontiff with call to action

AFP, BUENOS AIRES: With songs, candles, flags and prayers, Buenos Aires mourners marked the burial of pontiff and native son Pope Francis Saturday.

As the 88-year-old was being laid to rest an ocean away in Rome, thousands gathered by Buenos Aires' cathedral for dawn vigils and a mass of remembrance.

They were urged to take up the activist mantle of Latin America's first pope and to carry on his life's work.

"Let us be the outgoing Church that Francis always wanted us to be, a restless Church that mobilizes," Buenos Aires' archbishop Jorge Garcia Cuerva told a funeral mass.

Braving rain and the an-tipodean autumn chill, dozens of people set up tents in the city's famed Plaza de Mayo for an overnight vigil until 05:00 local time (08:00 GMT), when Pope Francis' funeral began in St. Peter's Square at the Vatican.

Images of the pope and the Virgin of Luján were illuminated with candles, bread was broken and flags were flown.

Iara Amado, a 25-year-old social worker, said she wanted the vigil "to reclaim the pope's legacy, to transform the sadness left by his departure into a beacon of hope."

They hung banners with some of the most emblematic phrases of Francis's papacy: "Make a ruckus" and "dream big."
