"Overpricing will affect tourism in Goa in the long term. People may look to new places," Godinho cau-

The minister acknowledged Goa's strong position in India's tourism landscape but warned against complacency. "Goa is one place where everyone wants to come. We have been a number one tourist destination. Charters are coming from across the world. Tourists are coming from the country. After seeing all this, we became a little complacent," he observed.

Godinho expressed concern about recent tourist numbers falling short of expectations. "For some reasons, we are not happy with the footfall in the tourism sector. We have to work together to take tourism forward," he stated.

GHRC directs Penha-de-Franca panchayat to halt waste handling at MRF site near school

Commission cites pollution, improper segregation and health concerns raised by parents

Team Herald

PANJIM: The Goa Human Rights Commission (GHRC) has directed the Penha-de-Franca Village Panchayat to stop handling mixed waste—comprising biodegradable and non-biodegradable materials—at the authorised Material Recovery Facility (MRF) site, and to instead transport the waste to the solid waste management facility at Saligao.

The order came during the hearing of a complaint filed by Pushpa Naik and others, all parents of children studying at Vidya Prabodhini School, Porvorim. The Commission agreed with the complainants and the Chairman of the Prabodhan Education Society, noting that inspection reports from the Goa State Pollution Control Board (GSPCB) revealed improper waste segregation by the Penha-de-Franca Panchayat. This, the reports said, had resulted in environmental pollution in the area, prompting the GSPCB to impose a compensation penalty of Rs 10,000 on the Panchayat.

The GHRC stated that the GSPCB's directions must be strictly complied with. It further instructed the Board to monitor the MRF site and conduct inspections every 15 days, issuing directions to the panchayat as needed.

Following the first inspection of the MRF shed on September 20, 2024, the GSPCB issued directions via an order dated July 26, 2024, citing violations of the conditions under which operation of the MRF was approved (vide order dated August 4, 2021). The Panchayat was directed to pay Rs 10,000 as environmental compensation.

In response, the Village Panchayat requested a six-month period to carry out procedural formalities, including floating tenders, inviting quotations, and corresponding with the Directorate of Panchayats and the BDO, Bardez, for necessary approvals regarding the MRF shed. However, the GHRC observed that the Rs 10,000 fine imposed by the Board had still not been paid.

A second inspection held on December 10, 2024, revealed that the MRF shed was located directly opposite the newly constructed Vidya Prabodhini School premises, separated only by a six-metre-wide road. The shed was found to be inadequately covered, lacking separate compartments for waste segregation.

The inspection also found dry waste littered and scattered both within and outside the MRF shed. Traces of wet waste, including vegetable scraps, kitchen and restaurant waste, were also observed. The contractor informed inspectors that small amounts of wet waste often came mixed with dry waste. Additionally, construction and demolition (C&D) waste was seen disposed of at the site.

The parents of Vidya Prabodhini School students had earlier lodged complaints stating that their children had been shifted in June 2024 to the new school building, which was located next to the garbage treatment plant and exposed to a polluted atmosphere. They had appealed for action on grounds of violation of human rights.

3rd case in five months: Bailancho Ekvott seeks probe into BITS Pilani student suicides

Team Herald

MARGAO: Women's rights group Bailancho Ekvott has raised serious concerns following the recent suicide of a student at BITS Pilani, urging authorities to investigate possible causes, including ragging and inadequate mental health support on campus.

Speaking to the media, Bailancho Ekvott President Auda Viegas described the incident as part of a troubling pattern, pointing out that three students have reportedly died by suicide at the institution within the last five months.

She said the recurring cases suggest systemic issues that remain unaddressed and may be driving students to the point of self-harm.

"There could be ragging on campus, and if students are not filing complaints, we need to ask why. Is there a culture of silence, fear, or mistrust? Are there qualified counsellors available to handle these sensitive issues?" questioned Viegas.

She called for an impartial and transparent inquiry into the student deaths to determine whether the campus environment is contributing to psychological distress among students.

According to Viegas, academic pressure, social isolation, or harassment could be underlying causes that need to be identified and tackled.

"It is unacceptable and unbelievable that self-harm is seen as a solution by young, promising students. The suicide of any student is a tragedy that the education system must confront and learn from," she said.

Viegas emphasised the need for institutions like BITS Pilani to prioritise the emotional and psychological well-being of their students alongside academic success.

Stampede aftermath: North Goa gets new Collector, SP

Team Herald

PANJIM: In the wake of the fatal stampede during the Shree Lairai Zatra in Shirgao early Saturday morning, the Goa government has initiated a series of administrative and police transfers to ensure a fair and independent inquiry into the incident.

IAS officer Yashaswini B, who previously served as Director of Fisheries, has been appointed the new North Goa District Collector. She replaces Sneha Gitte, IAS, who has now been posted as the Director of Science and Technology and Managing Director of the Goa Waste Management Corporation.

The reshuffle extends to the police force as well. Superintendent of Police (SP) Akshat Kaushal has been posted to head the State Police Control Room. SP Rahul Gupta, who currently oversees the Crime Branch, has been given additional charge as SP North Goa. The move is aimed at strengthening coordination during the ongoing investigations and maintaining law and order in the district.

Meanwhile, Mapusa DySP Wilson D'Souza has been assigned the additional responsibility of Sub-Divisional Police Officer (SDPO) for Bicholim. PI Vijay Rane of the Crime Branch will now also serve as Police Inspector for Bicholim.

These changes have been effected amid public outcry and demands for accountability following the stampede, which left six people dead and several others injured.

Nuvem GS resolves freeze on large housing projects

Decision taken after discussion on how rapid development is straining essential services and the environment; follows several other villages

Team Herald

MARGAO: At Nuvem's gram sabha on Sunday, villagers unanimously passed a resolution calling for a moratorium (temporary ban) on the construction of multi-family housing complexes—such as apartment buildings and row houses—until the government defines the village's carrying capacity. The decision followed a detailed discussion on how rapid development is straining essential services and the local environment.

The proposal was moved by Jose Roque Andrade, who warned that Nuvem's infrastructure—particularly its water supply and roads—is already stretched beyond capacity. He expressed concern that further approvals for large housing projects would jeopardise the future of existing residents. Villagers Carmelito Andrade and Zarina D'Cunha also supported the concerns, leading to a resolution moved by Carmelito and seconded by Zarina. It was passed unanimously, with the sarpanch assuring that the matter would be taken up with the authorities.

Environmental degradation was also raised during the meeting, with Zarina highlighting construction and land-filling in low-lying areas near the Nuvem underpass, part of the River Sal floodplains. She pointed to new roadside structures and their impact on local biodiversity. Sarpanch Freda D'Sa said no licences had been issued for these works and she would write to the highway authority for clarification.

Zarina also criticised the lack of meetings of the panchayat's committees. Apart from the Village Development Committee (VDC) and the biodiversity committee, she noted that others had not convened and called for regular reviews and action.

Another issue came from a Cupem villager, who flagged traffic congestion near the Honda (Goa Rajee) showroom caused by the placement of signals. The sarpanch acknowledged the problem and said steps would be taken to shift the signals forward.

Flood risk: Mungul residents threaten stir if debris not cleared

Team Herald

MARGAO: Frustrated by inaction, residents of Mungul-Fatorda have issued a one-week ultimatum to authorities to remove soil dumped during the construction of the stilt bridge for the western bypass near the SGPD market, failing which they will escalate the matter with the authorities. The soil, which was filled to facilitate machinery movement for the bridge's construction, was supposed to be cleared after completion, as assured by PWD officials and the contractor concerned in the presence of local representatives. However, six months since the bridge's completion, the debris remains, raising fears of severe flooding in the low-lying area during the upcoming monsoon.

"The entire stretch is a natural water catchment zone, and if this soil isn't removed, our village could be submerged," said Cruz Fernandes, a concerned resident. He pointed out that officials had also promised a culvert along the Margao-Col-va road to manage water flow, but no work has been done. "We were given assurances in writing and in meetings, yet nothing has happened. Now, with the monsoon approaching, we have no choice but to demand immediate action."

The villagers are now calling on Chief Minister Pramod Sawant, who also holds the PWD portfolio, and local Fatorda MLA Vijai Sardesai to intervene. "If the soil isn't cleared within a week, we will meet the MLA and consider stronger measures," warned Fernandes. With time running out, the community is bracing for a potential crisis, hoping authorities act before the first rains arrive.
