

ONGC explores setting up waste treatment plant at Sonsodo

Team Herald

MARGAO: In a potential game-changer for Margao's long standing waste management woes, the Oil and Natural Gas Corporation (ONGC) is exploring the possibility of setting up a waste treatment plant at the Sonsodo dump yard as part of its Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) efforts. The proposal, if finalised, could bring much-needed relief to the city, which has grappled with the issue of waste disposal for several years. Sonsodo, the site of Margao's primary garbage dump, has been a source of environmental concern and public criticism due to its mismanagement and lack of long-term solutions. Reacting to the development, Margao MLA Digambar Kamat confirmed ongoing discussions with ONGC officials but clarified that no final decision has been made. "We had a meeting in this regard, wherein ONGC officials expressed their interest in establishing a waste treatment plant in Goa, with one each in both districts," Kamat stated. While the MLA welcomed the idea in principle, he stressed the need for careful examination of the proposal. "We are ready to welcome the proposal, but it needs to be studied thoroughly before moving forward," he added. The initiative, still in its preliminary stage, signals a possible partnership between public institutions and corporate entities to tackle environmental challenges. If successful, the ONGC project could serve as a model for sustainable waste management in Goa and inspire similar collaborations across the state. Citizens and local stakeholders are now waiting for concrete developments, hopeful that this proposal might finally offer a viable, long-term solution to the waste management crisis at Sonsodo.

MAJOR ACCIDENT AVERTED AT CURCHOREM AS TRUCK IGNORES TRAFFIC CIRCLE

CURCHOREM: A major road accident was averted near the Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj Chowk at Curcholem when a 12-wheeler truck from Karnataka, transporting concrete to the Cacor Industrial Estate, dangerously violated traffic rules by taking a wrong turn and bypassing the designated traffic circle. The reckless manoeuvre nearly caused a head-on collision with Police Officer Nilesh Desai, who was travelling from Sanguem to Curcholem in a four-wheeler. Quick reflexes prevented a major crash, but the incident highlighted growing concerns over traffic violations by heavy vehicles in the area. The Curcholem police have since detained the truck driver for questioning and further investigation. Authorities are examining whether negligence, unfamiliarity with local routes, or disregard for road safety played a role in the incident. Police officials have urged truck drivers and transport operators to strictly follow road signage and traffic patterns to avoid life-threatening situations, especially in densely trafficked areas.

Curtorim MLA urges action to prevent Sonsodo leachate flow

Team Herald

MARGAO: With the monsoon season on the horizon, Curtorim MLA Alexio Reginaldo Lourenco has once again raised the alarm over the persistent issue of leachate and wet waste flowing onto public roads from garbage trucks transporting waste to the Sonsodo dump yard. He has called on Margao Municipal Council to act immediately to avoid further inconvenience to commuters—particularly those from the Curtorim constituency. Following an on-site inspection at Sonsodo on Friday, Lourenco made it clear that this year, there must be no repeat of the annual monsoon nightmare where roads become hazardous due to leaking leachate from waste trucks. "The problem of leachate flowing onto the roads is not being faced by residents of Margao or Fatorda but by the people of Curtorim. This needs to be addressed immediately," he stated.

The MLA suggested that the current access route used by garbage trucks be diverted to minimize the impact on public roads. He also recalled that in the past, he had personally taken the initiative to create a system of traps and drains to contain the leachate and prevent it from spilling onto the roads, though sustained efforts are needed to ensure long-term results. While the Sonsodo waste dump falls under the jurisdiction of the Margao Municipal Council (MMC), Lourenco expressed his frustration over the lack of action despite repeated concerns. "Even though Sonsodo is under the MMC, I, as the MLA of Curtorim, have shown consistent interest in resolving this issue because it directly affects my constituents," he said.

Residents of Curtorim have often voiced their dissatisfaction with the neglect of the problem, especially during the rainy season when roads become slippery and unhygienic due to the waste runoff. Lourenco has urged the municipal authorities to work proactively this year and ensure that all necessary preventive measures are in place before the monsoon begins.

Crocodile attack on woman, livestock leave Saton-Dabal villagers shell shocked

Team Herald

PONDA: Villagers at Saton-Dabal are living in fear following a series of crocodile attacks, including a shocking assault on a woman and subsequent attacks on livestock. The locals are now urging authorities to take action to address the growing threat and restore their daily routine, which has long depended on the Dudhsagar River.

The first incident occurred on Tuesday morning when two crocodiles attacked Visranti Naik while she was washing clothes in the river. Thankfully, she survived the attack, but the incident has left the village shaken. The fear escalated when, on Wednesday night, a crocodile attacked a calf at Davkon, located downstream. The villagers, returning from their work, managed to rescue the animal.

In response to the threat, locals took matters into their own hands, lighting firecrackers along the riverbank in an attempt to drive the crocodiles away. At the same time, the Forest Department acted swiftly by installing signboards in both Konkani and English, warning people not to wash, swim, or fish in the river due to the presence of crocodiles.

RFO Ravi Shiradkar led a team from the Forest Department to inspect the riverbank in Collem after the calf attack. The inspection revealed that wet waste, including food scraps, had been dumped along the riverbank, attracting both cattle and crocodiles. The forest officials

Signboards installed by Forest Department in both Konkani and English, warning people not to wash, swim, or fish in the river due to the presence of crocodiles urged the villagers to avoid dumping waste in the area to prevent further attacks on stray cattle.

Following the crocodile attacks, the villagers have demanded that the water stored in the Ambe Bandhara be released to drive the crocodiles away. In response, the Water Resources Department (WRD) removed a plate to release some water, as per the Forest Department's instructions. However, villagers have claimed that the Bandhara still holds sufficient water, and they believe that more water should be drained to encourage the crocodiles to leave. The construction of the Bandhara three years ago has led to the accumulation of water, creating an ideal breeding ground for crocodiles, which the villagers believe has contributed to the recent attacks. The Bandhara water is also used to supply the OPA Treatment Plant during the summer months.

Bethora locals demand hot-mixing of main village road before monsoon

Team Herald

PONDA: Residents of Bethora are calling for the hot-mixing of a two-kilometre stretch of the village's main road, which was previously dug up for various development works. Locals are concerned about the deteriorating condition of the road and the potential hardships they may face during the upcoming monsoon season. The villagers expressed their frustration over the road's condition last year, when they faced significant difficulties during the monsoon due to large craters and rough patches. The condition worsened throughout the season, causing heavy dust pollution, which continued until the Ganesh Chaturthi festival. Many commuters, including those heading to the nearby industrial estate, had to endure jolts while travelling on the crater-ridden road.

The road in question runs from Bethora Kanneval Main Junction to Devazad at the Industrial Estate, a crucial route for both local and heavy vehicles. Following public outcry, the road was temporarily patched up last year, but the makeshift repairs have only made the surface more uneven. With the monsoon approaching, residents are worried that the road will once again become impassable, leading to a repeat of last year's difficulties.

Six persons, including two women and a 17-year-old boy, were killed and more than 70 persons injured in the stampede that occurred in the early hours of May 2. Meanwhile, the inquiry committee led by Revenue Secretary Sandeep Jacques has submitted its report to the government.
