EU, UK sanctions target Russia's shadow fleet of tankers illicitly transporting oil

AP, BRUSSELS: The European Union on Tuesday agreed to impose fresh sanctions on Russia, notably targeting almost 200 ships from the shadow fleet illicitly transporting oil to skirt Western restrictions put in place over Moscow's war in Ukraine.
 The 27-nation bloc targeted 189 ships in all, and imposed asset freezes and travel bans on several officials as well as on a number of Russian companies. The measures were endorsed by EU foreign ministers in

Putin feigns interest in peace, more sanctions are in the works. Russia's actions and those who enable Russia face severe consequences
 - Kaja Kallas, EU foreign policy chief

Brussels.
 EU foreign policy chief Kaja Kallas said that while President Vladimir "Putin feigns interest in peace, more sanctions are in the works. Russia's actions and those who enable Russia face severe consequences".
 Russia uses its "shadow fleet" of ships to transport oil and gas, or to carry stolen Ukrainian grain. The EU has now targeted almost 350 of the ships in total.

 The new measures are not obviously linked to Russian delays in agreeing to a ceasefire. Work on the measures began in the days after the last package was finalised three months ago.
 Ukrainian officials have said that the shadow fleet involves around 500 aging ships of uncertain ownership and safety practices that are dodging sanctions and keeping the oil revenue coming.

 Ratings agency S and P Global and the Kyiv School of Economics Institute, a think tank, have put the number at over 400 ships that can transport oil, or products made from crude such as diesel fuel and gasoline.
