

Annual cover-up of Cuncolim's hazardous waste dump begins

The long overdue transportation of 35,000 tonnes of hazardous waste from the Industrial Estate to the Pissurlem disposal facility will have to wait another year

Team Herald

MARGAO: As authorities commenced the process of covering hazardous waste at the Cuncolim Industrial Estate, concerned citizens have raised strong objections, demanding more comprehensive action to prevent environmental contamination and protect agricultural land.

Residents from the surrounding areas have voiced concern that simply covering the hazardous waste is not a long-term solution, or even a safe short-term option for the monsoon. They emphasised that leachate from the waste continues to seep into nearby fields, contaminating underground water sources and threatening livelihoods.

"This is not just industrial waste anymore—it has effectively turned into a mining pit, leaking toxins into our fields," said Aviraj Dessai, a local resident.

The waste site, long criticised for being a health and environmental hazard, has grown increasingly dangerous, especially during the monsoon season when runoff from the dump carries contaminants into low-lying areas.

Citizens are now demanding that the entire field dump be removed and shifted to a secure location with proper containment measures.

"This is about the health of our soil, our crops, and our children. Just covering the site is like sweeping the problem under the rug," said Desai.

Locals have also pointed out that the current efforts fall short of environmental norms and do not address the root of the problem—the illegal and unregulated dumping of hazardous industrial waste.

While the initial move to cover the waste may reduce immediate surface exposure, experts warn that

Margao, Fatorda locals wake up to dry taps again

Team Herald

MARGAO: Residents of Margao and Fatorda were left with dry taps and empty tanks for the second day on Wednesday, even as sheets of rainwater continued to pour from the sky.

While localities connected to old pipelines continue to receive water, those on the new line have had their supply completely cut off - without prior notice. Families were seen putting out buckets and pans, collecting rain water for their household needs.

Residents are frustrated and left without answers as the water crisis drags on without resolution.

Repeated follow-ups with the Public Works Department (PWD) have yielded only shifting assurances. While officials initially promised restoration by this evening, the latest updates suggest water may not be available until well past midnight — or possibly even tomorrow morning, alleged citizens.

Savio Coutinho, Convener of the Margao Congress Block, strongly criticised the lack of urgency from the authorities.

"It is unacceptable that Margao residents are left without water for over 24 hours, and no concrete action has been taken. What is more shocking is the silence of our local leaders. Where are the emergency water tankers? Why are basic needs being ignored?"

He further added, "The promises made to Madgaonkar residents on 8th March 2025 have turned out to be hollow. The least the administration can do now is ensure that water tankers are deployed immediately to all affected areas — not tomorrow, but right now."

The Margao Congress Block is calling for the PWD Water Supply Division and the Margao MLA to respond immediately and ensure water supply in full swing. "The people deserve timely and fair access to essential services," said Coutinho.

Navelim garbage to be treated at Cacora plant

Team Herald

MARGAO: The Goa Solid Waste Management Authority (GSWMA) has initiated the process of clearing and transporting accumulated waste from Navelim constituency to the Cacora waste treatment plant.

The operation began on Wednesday and has been welcomed by local representatives and village panchayats.

The move brings much-needed relief to residents of Rawanfond, Davorlim, and Aquem-Baixo, whose panchayats have extended full support to the initiative. Navelim MLA Ulhas Tuenkar expressed satisfaction over the progress, noting that the garbage problem had persisted for years due to inadequate waste manage-

For years, the absence of an effective waste collection and treatment mechanism burdened locals. Even the Material Recovery Facility (MRF) built in the constituency failed to address the issue, as high electricity costs made it unsustainable to operate ment systems and the lack of a reliable disposal facility.

"Garbage was a major issue in Navelim constituency. Despite several efforts, the problem remained unresolved until the Goa Solid Waste Management Authority stepped in and took responsibility," said Tuenkar.

For years, the absence of an effective waste collection and treatment mechanism burdened local panchayats and residents. Even the Material Recovery Facility (MRF) built in the constituency failed to address the issue, as high electricity costs made it unsustainable to operate. With the GSWMA now overseeing the waste transfer and treatment process, hopes are high for a cleaner and more sustainable environment in the region.

Tuenkar also revealed that discussions were held with all five panchayats within his constituency regarding coordinated waste management.

However, only three—Rumdamoll, Davorlim, and Aquem-Baixo—agreed to cooperate by handing over their waste for transportation to the Cacora plant. Efforts are ongoing to bring the remaining panchayats on board.

Sewage gushes onto streets in Malbhat-Margao, residents demand lasting solution

Team Herald

MARGAO: For the past several days, residents of Malbhat in the Aquem area of Margao have been grappling with a serious sanitation crisis, as raw sewage continues to pour from an overflowing chamber into a nearby nullah adjacent to Cine Vishant Theater.

Local resident and civic activist Savio Coutinho expressed deep frustration over the ongoing problem. He explained that the sewage is not only flooding open gutters but also seeping into residences, creating an unbearable stench

Government workers attempt to unclog a chamber spewing raw sewage in Malbhat. Locals say the sewage flows into rain water nullahs and even enter homes and exposing families to hazardous conditions.

"This isn't the first time we're facing this problem. We endured a similar situation last year, yet authorities have failed to act decisively," Coutinho said.

The recurring nature of the crisis has raised questions about the Margao Municipal Council's commitment to public health and infrastructure maintenance.

Coutinho highlighted that although a robotic machine was recently procured to clean sewage chambers, it remains unused.

"The equipment was purchased despite clear indications that it would not be compatible with the existing chamber design. As a result, it now lies idle, and sanitation workers are forced to revert to manual cleaning methods," he added.

Residents have voiced their disappointment over what they describe as negligence by the municipal authorities, stressing that the absence of a long-term solution has left the community vulnerable to disease outbreaks, especially with the monsoon underway.

Calls are growing louder for the MMC to take immediate action. Locals are demanding that the council not only address the current overflow but also implement structural improvements to prevent future incidents. Community members insist that health and safety must be prioritised, and that temporary fixes are no longer acceptable.

South Goa Collector orders demolition of 2 unsafe buildings

Team Herald

MARGAO: As the South Goa District Collector issued instructions for the demolition of two unsafe buildings in Margao, former minister Babu Azgaonkar strongly criticised the Margao Municipal Council (MMC) for failing to ensure public safety, citing negligence and lack of initiative.

Speaking to reporters, Azgaonkar expressed outrage over the MMC's justification that lack of funds was preventing it from demolishing dangerous structures.

"Claiming no funds is not an excuse. It is the civic body's responsibility to request financial support from the government if needed. Public safety cannot be compromised

— Babu Azgaonkar, former minister

"Claiming no funds is not an excuse. It is the civic body's responsibility to request financial support from the government if needed. Public safety cannot be compromised," he stated.

The MMC has submitted a list of 21 unsafe buildings in the city to the District Collector, but action has been limited. Azgaonkar argued that the cost of demolition should be recovered from the owners of the buildings and that continued inaction is endangering lives.

"The Chairperson is more focused on increasing fees than delivering safety and essential services. The Margao MLA must also take this matter seriously," he added.

Margao civic body under fire for failing to desilt market drains

Team Herald

MARGAO: Shopkeepers at Gandhi Market in Margao have voiced serious grievances against the Margao Municipal Council (MMC), accusing it of gross negligence in maintaining the drainage system.

The traders claim the lack of de-silting work has led to severe flooding, damaging goods, disrupting daily business, and creating unsanitary conditions.

According to Rajendra Azgaonkar, President of the Gandhi Market Traders Association, repeated appeals to the civic body have gone unanswered. "We brought this issue to the attention of the MMC long ago, but no action has been taken. The stagnant water has started to stink, making it unbearable to work. Our stocks are getting damaged, and footfall has dropped drastically," he said.

The issue came to a head after heavy rainfall last week flooded at least 20 shops in the market, leaving traders frustrated and helpless.

Anil Kalekar, one of the affected shopkeepers, said, "We've been dealing with this problem for over a week now. Despite several complaints, the authorities have failed to act. Every passing day is hurting our business and putting public health at risk."

Former minister Babu Azgaonkar

also lashed out at the MMC, holding the Chairperson directly responsible for the inaction.

He warned of agitation if desilting work is not initiated immediately. "If the council fails to take this matter seriously, we will stop paying taxes to the MMC and shut down the market. We demand action within eight days. If nothing is done, we won't allow the Chairperson to even sit in his office," he declared.

Traders have emphasised the urgency of the situation, especially with the monsoon season looming. They warned that further delays could lead to more extensive damage, posing both economic and health hazards.

P'yat raises alarm over unauthorised boats, labourers on Rachol riverfront

Team Herald

MARGAO: The Rachol Village Panchayat has strongly objected to the alleged illegal parking of fishing vessels and unauthorised stay of labourers at Ilha de Rachol, claiming violations of the Coastal Regulation Zone (CRZ) norms.

Panchayat members, led by Sarpanch Joseph Vas, have submitted a formal complaint to the CRZ authorities demanding immediate corrective action.

According to the panchayat, several trawlers and fishing boats are being parked illegally along the riverbank in front of the chapel and football ground at Ilha de Rachol.

The Sarpanch stated that this activity is damaging the retaining and protective wall built by the panchayat, and is obstructing local fishermen who rely on these waters for their livelihood.

"This unauthorised parking is not only causing damage to public infrastructure but is also affecting the day-to-day fishing operations of local residents," said Sarpanch Vas. "It's creating a major inconvenience for local fishermen, as their boats can no longer be docked or moved freely."

In addition, the panchayat has raised serious concerns regarding the labourers associated with these vessels. The Sarpanch pointed out that these labourers are staying in the area without proper facilities, and are engaging in open defecation on the bundh, posing significant health and environmental risks.

"There is a high chance of disease outbreaks, including dengue fever and cholera due to the lack of sanitation," he warned. "The presence of these labourers, without proper health screening, poses a risk to the well-being of the local community."

The Rachol Panchayat has urged the authorities to immediately relocate the vessels to designated parking zones and to provide proper accommodation and sanitation facilities for the workers. They have also requested regular health check-ups for the migrant labourers to prevent any potential spread of diseases.

Furthermore, the panchayat stressed the need for strict enforcement of CRZ regulations and preventive measures to maintain hygiene, protect local infrastructure, and safeguard the health of the village population.
