Kirlapal locals fear scrapyards may pollute water bodies during monsoon

Urge panchayat to file a complaint with Pollution Control Board against the owner; claim Dudhsagar River infested with crocodiles

WHAT THE LOCALS WANT

- CCTV cameras installed in the village to enhance security and deter illegal dumping of garbage.
- Fines imposed on those found littering in public areas.
- Frequent power supply disruptions and low voltage issues addressed

- Full-time panchayat secretary appointed
- The long-pending gutter work along the main road at Codli completed
- Roadside encroachments and stray cattle occupying the highway cleared

PONDA: Voicing concerns over several pressing issues in Kirlapal-Dabal, the residents have urged the panchayat to file a complaint with the Goa State Pollution Control Board (GSPCB) against the owner of an "illegal" scrapyards operating near Somnath High School in Savargal, as they fear that the chemicals and scrap materials could pollute the nearby water bodies during monsoon.

While the Sarpanch Damodar Bandekar informed the gram sabha that the panchayat had not issued a No Objection Certificate and had previously directed the scrapyards to clear the premises, the owner obtained a stay order, and the matter is currently under review of the Deputy Director of Panchayats. The residents have urged the panchayat to file a complaint against the scrapyards owner with the Goa State Pollution Control Board. Another issue raised by the locals is the increasing infestation of crocodiles in the Dudhsagar River. This concern was amplified by a recent incident where a woman was injured while washing clothes at Dabal. The residents believe that the increased nuisance is due to visitors discarding garbage and waste food into the river.

Furthermore, they observed that the construction of the new Panchayat Ghar does not align with the approved plan and have requested the local body to direct the contractor to adhere to the original design.

Dilapidated Shivaji Fort at Farmagudi requires urgent attention

Entrance wall has developed cracks, and sections of the side walls are collapsing; Rs 100 cr reconstruction plan proposed

Team Herald

PONDA: The historic Shivaji Fort at Farmagudi lies in a dilapidated state and is awaiting urgent government intervention. The entrance wall has developed cracks, and sections of the side walls have been collapsing during the monsoon over the past two years.

Concrete benches and tiled flooring too have deteriorated significantly due to prolonged neglect. The fort is situated in a prime location overlooking the National Highway (NH) at Farmagudi and contributes to the area's scenic beauty. Despite previous promises by the government to restore the fort during annual State-level Shiv Jayanti celebrations, no major renovation work has yet materialised.

Locals have expressed concern over overgrown bushes and trees, which not only marthe fort's appearance but also pose a danger to tourists due to the potential threat of venomous reptiles.

Of the 25 concrete benches installed at the site, most are now damaged, with crumbling concrete and exposed ironwork creating hazards for visitors.

It has become an annual occurrence for parts of the fort's walls to collapse during the rainy season. Residents stressed that, given its proximity to the highway and its popularity with tourists, the fort should be better maintained.

Local MLA and Power Minister Sudin Dhavalikar stated, "The fifty-year-old fort structure has become weak. Since 2018-19, efforts have been made for a new fort through the PWD. However, the Tourism Department later urged then PWD Minister Nilesh Cabral to hand over the project, since the fort comes under the jurisdiction of the Tourism Department."

Dhavalikar added that it was subsequently decided to reconstruct the fort using central Tourism funds. "Chief Minister Pramod Sawant also made efforts to push forward the new project. The plan is to demolish the existing structure and build a new one at an estimated cost of Rs 100 crore. Once the tender is floated and the work order is issued, construction will begin," he confirmed.

Ponda sees a surge in demand for plastic covers, rain protection gear

Team Herald

PONDA: The early onset of monsoon has increased the demand for plastic covers and other rain protection gear in Ponda.

The unexpected early arrival of the monsoon has left some residents who intended to carry out last-minute repairs relying on plastic as a temporary solution to protect their houses from the rain.

In addition to regular traders stocking these items, numerous vendors have emerged along roadsides, selling a variety of plastic covers in different qualities, sizes, and types, providing them with a means of income. Despite ongoing pre-monsoon preparations to secure houses for the long monsoon season, the earlier-than-expected rains have compelled residents to expedite these efforts. Consequently, there has been a steady stream of buyers in the area purchasing plastic mats, nylon ropes, and both transparent and non-transparent plastic sheets, which are typically useful during the season.

Several residents are using plastic sheets to cover roofs that are prone to leaks, seeking protection from seepage, wind, and heavy rains throughout the monsoon.

Early monsoon 'washes away' beach shack extension plans

CALANGUTE: The early onset of monsoon has scuttled the plans of beach shack owners at Calangute and Baga beaches to remain open till mid-June.

On Tuesday, the Shack Owners Welfare Society (SOWS) wrote to the Tourism Department not to give an extension till mid-June to beach shacks due to the bad weather conditions, SOWS general secretary John Lobo said.

He said some shacks in the Calangute-Candolim beach-belt have collapsed with the strong winds and heavy rain in the last few days.

Several beach shacks at the Calangute and Baga beaches had stayed open expecting to get an extension after they had been given an extension and allowed to stay open till mid-June last year. The early arrival of the monsoon has cancelled the plans. It has also caused massive erosion of the beaches, with water now touching the shacks. Half the shacks had already shut down two months before the end of the season.
