US judge blocks Trump ban on foreign students at Harvard

AFP, NEW YORK, UNITED STATES: A federal judge on Friday indefinitely paused Donald Trump's bid to block Harvard from enrolling foreign students as the US president said a "deal" with the Ivy League school was in the works. The order by District Judge Allison Burroughs will allow international students to continue to attend the elite university while a lawsuit filed by Harvard plays out in the courts. Trump, who has cut federal grants for Harvard and tried a host of different tactics to block the institution from hosting international students, said that his administration has been holding negotiations with Harvard. "Many people have been asking what is going on with Harvard University and their largescale improprieties that we have been addressing, looking for a solution," Trump said in a post Friday on Truth Social. "We have been working closely with Harvard, and it is very possible that a Deal will be announced over the next week or so," he said. "If a Settlement is made on the basis that is currently being discussed, it will be 'mindbogglingly' HISTORIC, and very good for our Country."

Trump did not provide any details about the purported "deal." The Trump administration has sought to remove Harvard from an electronic

Polls can't take place without govt's support Bangladesh election body chief

PTI, DHAKA: The government plays a central role in the election process, the head of Bangladesh's Election Commission said on Saturday, asserting that holding polls is "not possible" without its support. Chief Election Commissioner AMM Nasir Uddin said that no matter "how independent" the top election body is said to be, "it is not possible to hold an election without the government's support."

"We have to conduct the polls with the cooperation of the government," the Dhaka Tribune newspaper quoted him as saying. He added that the commission requires assistance from law enforcement agencies, the administration, and its officials to conduct the election. Nasir Uddin made the remarks after inaugurating a training programme in the capital. In response to a question, he said while there is no constant communication between the election commission and the government, contact is being maintained both "formally and informally."

"There are various channels of communication, and we are involved in many of the government's reform and administrative activities. Everything will be clear in time," the bdnews24 news portal quoted him as saying. "You'll learn everything when the time comes... We do have an operational plan - though I wouldn't call it a roadmap," he said, responding to another question.

Talking about the timeline of the polls, he said, "We'll announce the schedule in due time and you'll know the date then."

"You'll learn everything when the time comes... We do have an operational plan - though I wouldn't call it a roadmap," he said, responding to another question.
