

MP, MLA LOCKED IN WAR OF WORDS OVER GROUND DEVELOPMENT AT SADA

Amonkar accuses Capt Viriato of trying to fool people with fake publicity; Parliamentarian accuses legislator of corruption VASCO: A heated exchange erupted between Mormugao MLA Sankalp Amonkar and South Goa MP Capt Viriato Fernandes regarding the development of the Rose Circle ground at Sada, Mormugao.

The dispute began when Amonkar accused Capt Fernandes of misleading the public and engaging in a publicity stunt. Amonkar launched developmental works at the Rose Circle ground on Tuesday, taking a dig at Capt. Fernandes, who had previously claimed to have secured a No Objection Certificate (NOC) to undertake the same project under the MPLAD scheme.

Amonkar said, "I displayed the NOC on the very day I received the work order. If he (MP) genuinely intended to develop the ground under MPLAD funds, why did he not begin the work earlier? What was he doing all this while? He is only trying to fool the people with fake publicity. He should stop misleading them and get on the ground instead of playing politics."

Responding to Fernandes's earlier criticism regarding Amonkar's alleged inaction on coal pollution in the Mormugao constituency, the MLA asserted that the MP is pre-occupied with discussing coal and dust pollution but is not visible on the ground. He claimed that the MP "sits in Delhi and enjoys tea with the owners of coal handling companies like Adani and Jindal, while making baseless allegations against him".

Amonkar challenged the MP, "I challenge him (MP) to deny this and prove otherwise. We have proof of his dealings. Let him come to Damodar Temple, Vasco and refute my claims."

Refuting Amonkar's charges, Capt Fernandes questioned the MLA's moral standing.

"My life is an open book. Amonkar has no moral right to speak about me when he himself betrayed the people's mandate by joining the BJP despite winning on a Congress ticket. He took oaths in a temple, church and dargah that he will not defect after getting elected and yet he switched sides," said Capt Fernandes.

The South Goa MP accused Amonkar of corruption and alleged extortion from port-based companies, small businesses, and even street vendors.

This year's overflow comes 12 days earlier than last year, when the dam began overflowing at 7.07 p.m. on July 7.

Known for its picturesque surroundings, the Salaulim Dam is a vital water source for South Goa, supplying both drinking and irrigation water. It is also a popular destination for tourists and locals alike. The dam features Asia's first duckbill spillway, which enables efficient water discharge during periods of heavy rainfall.

In previous years, the dam overflowed on July 19 in 2023 and July 9 in 2022. This year's early overflow is attributed to the premature onset of the monsoon in Goa. With rainfall con-

"There is no need for nearby villagers to fear. As the rains have begun, all the dams will start overflowing. However, there is no need to worry—the gates are open," he said.

Fulkar Samaj of Mardol urge heritage status to preserve endangered jasmine plantations

Team Herald

PONDA: The Fulkar Samaj of Mardol has stepped up its efforts to preserve the unique and fragrant Zayo (jasmine flowers) that are on the verge of extinction in the region. A meeting was recently held at the Veling-Priol-Cuncolem Panchayat office, where over 70 Mollékars (traditional jasmine cultivators) gathered alongside officials from the Goa State Biodiversity Board to appeal for the protection of Jayache Molle (jasmine plantations) by declaring them a heritage site.

The initiative was spearheaded by Pratap Naik, President of Fulkar Samaj Mardol, who emphasised the historical and cultural importance of the plantations. According to him, the Mollékars have been cultivating jasmine in Mardol for over a hundred years, making it a vital part of their livelihood and Goan floral heritage.

However, a dispute over land ownership has emerged as a major obstacle in officially recognising the plantations as a heritage site. Despite their long-standing association with the land, the Fulkar Samaj has faced difficulties in securing its legal status. In recent years, there have also been several suspicious fire incidents—allegedly caused by unknown individuals—that have damaged large portions of the century-old jasmine plantations.

The Fulkar Samaj, deeply concerned about losing both a revered tradition and their source of income, has reiterated their plea to the State Biodiversity Board. "The Mardol Zayo is renowned across Goa for its exceptional fragrance and is highly sought after," said a member of the Fulkar Samaj. "But now we are not just losing a flower, we are losing our identity and livelihood."

Trekking season to Dudhsagar waterfall begins with monsoon thrill

GTDC flags off eco-tourism drive; locals benefit as tourists trek to witness nature's monsoon marvel

Team Herald

PONDA: The much-anticipated trekking season to the world-renowned Dudhsagar Waterfall officially began yesterday, with Goa Tourism Development Corporation (GTDC) Chairman Dr Ganesh Gaonkar flagging off an eco-tourism initiative promoting sustainable and adventure tourism in the region.

With the arrival of the monsoon, trekkers have started venturing through the lush forest trails to witness the majestic Dudhsagar Waterfall in its full gushing glory. While jeeps ferry tourists to the base of the falls from October to May, monsoon trekking becomes the only means to access the waterfall, as the Dudhsagar River swells and overflows, making jeep travel impossible. Dudhsagar, often regarded as the 'crown jewel' of Goa's natural beauty, gained international fame after being featured in the Bollywood film Chennai Express. Although the best view of the falls is from the railway bridge, public access was banned nearly a decade ago by the railways due to safety concerns and unruly behaviour by some passengers.

During the monsoon season, around 100 local tourist guides earn their livelihood by accompanying and guiding visitors along the forest trekking route. The trail offers an adventurous and thrilling experience, as trekkers brave the rains to reach the cascading marvel hidden deep in the Western Ghats. Locals and tourism stakeholders alike are hopeful that the eco-tourism initiative and safe trekking guidelines will help preserve the area's natural charm while continuing to boost local incomes during the season.
