Various issues being discussed at the Ponda Municipal Council meeting held on Thursday

PONDA: Cloth vendors operating in the dilapidated fish market building in Ponda received a long-awaited relief on Thursday, as the Ponda Municipal Council (PMC), in its meeting, approved their relocation to the mezzanine floor of the new market complex.

The decision comes following the intervention of Chief Minister Pramod Sawant. Previously, the PMC had proposed shifting the vendors to Palika Market, but the vendors strongly opposed the move, citing a lack of customer footfall in that location. Seeking redressal, they had approached the Chief Minister, after which a meeting was held with the PMC. The Council then decided to shift them to Palika Bazaar, and now, following Thursday's resolution, they will instead be accommodated in the mezzanine floor of the new market complex. In addition, 40 vendors currently operating at Palika Bazaar will also be relocated to the same space.

The Council meeting, chaired by PMC Chairperson

Anand Naik, also deliberated on several civic and development-related matters.

Naik stated that, with support from the Department of Animal Husbandry and veterinary doctors, the PMC will organise a sterilisation camp to neuter 1,000 stray dogs within Ponda city. The cam-

Stray cattle cause traffic chaos on Chandor-Xelvona route

MARGAO: Stray cattle roaming freely along the Chandor-Xelvona road are causing serious traffic congestion and posing a safety hazard to commuters, say concerned locals.

Residents report frequent sightings of cattle obstructing traffic, especially near Xelvona junction and Chandor, where animals are often found sitting in the middle of the road or wandering among moving vehicles.

The traffic woes in the area have been worsened by ongoing pipeline work, which has left roads dug up and narrowed in several places. With the increased number of vehicles and poor traffic management, the presence of stray cattle has only exacerbated the problem.

Madhu Naik, a resident of Xelvona, said, "Cattle lying on or moving across the roads not only block traffic but also put commuters at risk." Another regular commuter, Dinesh Shet, added, "Senior citizens and school-going children especially find it difficult to navigate the road safely due to the cattle menace."

According to sources, the cattle are often brought out for grazing by their owners, but once left unattended, they tend to occupy busy roads, causing frequent traffic disruptions.

On Monday, a group of stray cattle was seen blocking the main road at Xelvona, bringing traffic to a complete halt. Despite continuous honking, the cattle did not move. A truck driver eventually had to get down and physically drive them away. By then, a long line of vehicles—cars, trucks, and two-wheelers—had piled up on both sides. Traffic finally resumed once multiple drivers stepped in to clear the road.

Residents have urged local authorities and the veterinary department to take immediate steps to address the growing stray cattle issue, which they say is turning into a daily nuisance and potential accident risk.

Spa gutted in major fire at Calangute

CALANGUTE: A massive fire broke out at Gold Touch, a luxury Thai spa located at Naikawaddo, Calangute, on Thursday morning, gutting eight small rooms on the first floor. Fortunately, no casualties were reported.

According to Pilerne fire station officials, smoke was first noticed around 8 am from the closed premises, prompting an emergency call by 8.15 am. Firefighters rushed to the scene on the busy Calangute main road and launched operations immediately.

"The first floor was ablaze when we arrived. Due to heavy smoke, three fire fighters entered the structure to ventilate the building by opening windows and doors. The fire spread quickly due to the presence of towels, bed sheets and mattresses," officials said.

Preliminary reports suggest a short-circuit in the air-conditioner as the likely cause, possibly triggered by continuous rainfall since

Wednesday. "The damage is substantial, but the owner has not yet provided an exact estimate," officials added.

An additional fire tender was summoned from Mapusa to assist. The Pilerne fire crew included sub-officer Sunny Phayde and fire fighters Dinesh Gawade, Pritesh Mahaldar, Shrikant Sawant, Rajkiran Pednekar and Prahlad Kotkar.

SANGUEM: The Dharti Aaba Janbhagidari Abhiyan, part of the Dharti Aaba Janjatiya Gram Utkarsh Abhiyan, was launched at Sanguem Municipal Council Hall to mark the 150th birth anniversary of tribal icon Bhagwan Birsa Munda. The initiative aims to extend State and Central government schemes to 25 identified tribal villages in Goa.

The campaign, organised by the Ministry of Tribal Affairs and the Directorate of Tribal Welfare, is part of a national outreach across 597 districts to ensure comprehensive coverage of welfare schemes in tribal areas.

Chief Minister Dr Pramod Sawant announced that 18 departmental schemes will be implemented in the selected villages. He highlighted the restructuring of the Tribal Department and the formation of the Tribal Commission and Goa State Scheduled Tribes Finance and Development Corporation. Goa's first Tribal Research Centre has been established in Sanguem to address tribal health and cultural concerns, while a Tribal Museum at Farmagudi is nearing completion.

He further informed that 3,500 forest right sanads have been issued so far, with a target of full distribution by December 19, 2025. A dedicated marketplace for tribal products like Kunbi sarees, shawls, and jackets has also been created. The upcoming Kunbi Village in Sanguem is expected to be ready in three months at a cost of Rs 10 crore.

Union Minister for Tribal Affairs Jual Oram said Rs 79,000 crore has been allocated over three years for the Abhiyan, with 18 Union ministries working collaboratively. The scheme will address infrastructure, housing, piped water, electricity, solar energy, education, health, mobile connectivity, sustainable agriculture, and fishery development. "There will be no shortage of funds," he assured.

Speaker Ramesh Tawadkar said the government's approach is based on Antyodaya, Gramodaya, and Sarvodaya, ensuring the upliftment of even the most marginalised. Minister Subhash Phaladessai reiterated the government's commitment to mainstreaming tribal communities, while MP Sadanand Tanavade praised the strong public response and called for inclusive development as India moves toward Viksit Bharat.

On the occasion, benefits under 15 Central and State schemes were distributed to beneficiaries. Health check-ups, cancer detection, and dental screening camps were conducted, and two buses funded through the District Mineral Fund were flagged off to provide free transport for students.
